Attestation Instructions and Definitions

When HIPAA covered entity or business associate receives a request for protected health information (PHI) potentially related to reproductive health care, it must obtain a signed attestation that clearly states the requested use or disclosure is not for the prohibited purposes described below, where the request is for PHI for the following purposes:

- Health oversight activities
- Judicial or administrative proceedings
- Law enforcement
- Regarding decedents, disclosures to coroners and medical examiner

Prohibited Purposes. Covered entities and their business associates may not use or disclose PHI for the following:

- (1) To conduct a criminal, civil, or administrative investigation into any person for the mere act of seeking, obtaining, providing, or facilitating lawful reproductive health care.
- (2) To impose criminal, civil, or administrative liability on any person for the mere act of seeking, obtaining, providing, or facilitating lawful reproductive health care.
- (3) To identify any person for any purpose described in (1) or (2).

The prohibition applies when the reproductive health care at issue (1) is lawful under the law of the state in which such health care is provided under the circumstances in which it is provided, (2) is protected, required, or authorized by Federal law, including the United States Constitution, under the circumstances in which such health care is provided, regardless of the state in which it is provided, or (3) is provided by another person and presumed lawful.

Information for the Person Requesting the Medical Record or PHI

- By signing this attestation, you are verifying that you are not requesting PHI for a prohibited purpose and acknowledging that criminal penalties may apply if untrue.
- You may not add content that is not required or combine this form with another document except where another document is needed to support your statement that the requested disclosure is not for a prohibited purpose. For example, if the requested PHI is potentially related to reproductive health care that was provided by someone other than the covered entity or business associate from whom you are requesting the PHI, you may submit a document that supplies information that demonstrates substantial factual basis that the reproductive health care in question was not lawful under the specific circumstances in which it was provided.

Information for the Covered Entity or Business Associate

- You may not rely on the attestation to disclose the requested PHI if any of the following is true:
 - It is missing any required element or statement or contains other content that is not required.
 - It is combined with other documents, except for documents provided to support the attestation.
 - You know that material information in the attestation is false.
 - A reasonable covered entity or business associate in the same position would not believe the requestor's statement that the use or disclosure is not for a prohibited purpose as described above.
- If you later discover information that reasonably shows that any representation made in the attestation is materially false, leading to a use or disclosure for a prohibited purpose as described above, you must stop making the requested use or disclosure.
- You may not make a disclosure if the reproductive health care was provided by a person other than yourself and the requestor indicates that the PHI requested is for a prohibited purpose as described above, unless the requestor supplies information that demonstrates a substantial factual basis that the reproductive health care was not lawful under the specific circumstances in which it was provided.
- You must obtain a new attestation for each specific use or disclosure request.
- You must maintain a written copy of the completed attestation and any relevant supporting document

DEFINITIONS

Reproductive Health Care means health care, as defined in this section, that affects the health of an individual in all matters relating to the reproductive system and to its functions and processes. This definition shall not be construed to set forth a standard of care for or regulate what constitutes clinically appropriate reproductive health care."

Medical Examiners

These are usually physicians who specialize in forensic pathology and are appointed to their positions. They investigate deaths that are sudden, unexpected, suspicious, or unattended, and are often called upon to investigate violent deaths. Medical examiners are also responsible for signing death certificates for certain types of deaths, including homicides, suicides, and accidents.

Coroners

These are public officials who are elected or appointed to certify the cause of death. They often complete death certificates but may also have roles in law enforcement or as prosecuting attorneys. Coroners are not usually physicians or forensic pathologists, but they are required to undergo specific death investigation training.

A "health oversight agency" in the context of reproductive healthcare refers to a government entity, like a state health department or the federal Office for Civil Rights (OCR) within the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), that is authorized to monitor and enforce regulations regarding the privacy and access to reproductive healthcare services, ensuring compliance with laws like HIPAA and preventing discriminatory practices against individuals seeking such care.

Examples: State medical boards, state insurance commissions, the Department of Justice, and the HHS Office for Civil Rights.

Law enforcement is the system of agencies and individuals who are responsible for upholding the law, maintaining public safety, and managing public order. Law enforcement agencies are part of the criminal justice system and include police, courts, and corrections.

A judicial proceeding is a legal process where a judge presides over a case and makes decisions based on evidence. Judicial proceedings can include Court cases, Trials, Hearings, Petitions, and Other formal matters brought before the court.

An administrative proceeding is a legal process that involves a government agency making a decision about a dispute or issue. Administrative proceedings are non-judicial, meaning they don't involve a judge. They are often used to enforce regulations, resolve disputes, and govern matters within the agency's authority.
